Sancerre (Loire Valley)

Pascal Reverdy's domaine is based in the tiny hamlet of Maimbray. Maimbray is located in a valley surrounded by chalk hills adjacent to Chavignol and Verdigny. From their small cellar they produce one of France's most highly awarded Sancerres'.

The Reverdy's are highly accomplished viticulturists. They take great pride in their vineyards and they make it clear that the quality of the fruit comes from constant work and attention to every little detail in the vineyard throughout the year. The white Sancerre 'Terre de Maimbray' is picked at approximately 13° baumé and shows wonderful concentration of pure Sauvignon Blanc fruit, with fine chalky mineral flavours adding another dimension.

The Reverdy's reputation concerns both red and white cuvées, and there is also a rosé produced here. In the vineyard, yields are restricted and fruit is hand harvested. The brothers ferment each plot separately, and the cellar is well equipped with the option of stainless steel or wood for the fermentation and, naturally, temperature control to preserve the freshness that characterises the white wines of the region. There are several white cuvées, starting with the straight Sancerre, and the Terre de Maimbray bottlings. Then comes Les Côûtes, from a single hillside plot of 50 year old vines, harvested at 45 hl/ha, followed by the Vieilles Vignes, made from vines aged over 60 years, mostly from a single plot, harvested at less than 40 hl/ha, and fermented in old oak or acacia. All the wines rest on their lees over the winter, before bottling the following spring. These are wines of richness and depth that are gaining increasing recognition.

2015 Sancerre "Terre de Maimbray"

"A sample from cuve. I get fresh, pure, citrus fruits on the nose, oranges and citrus zest especially. A very fresh and bright style to the palate, with a slightly more muted acid frame than the 2014 vintage, but still supple and cool. Very fruit-dominated, but with a good acid freshness through the middle, cool and defined, bitter and interesting. 16-17/20."

2014 Sancerre "Terre de Maimbray"

"A sample from cuve. Lightly cloudy. Lovely expressive fruit on the nose, ripe, open and convincing. Similarly convincing but ripe Sauvignon style on the palate, wonderfully polished, fresh, with great depth of flavour, sweet and exotic citrus fruit notes, with some lightly musky edges. Lovely exuberant finish. Fabulous potential here - great stuff. From my first Loire 2014 report. 16.5-17.5/20 (February 2015). 16.5-17.5/20." The Wine Doctor February 2015
